“I am a disabled veteran of the Viet-Nam war era. I have had three service dogs, my present Dog is a female black Labrador, named Bella. My health problems make it hard to get around, so I use a wheelchair. Bella is always ready to help, because I have a hard time holding onto things with my hands. No matter where Bella is, all I have to do is call her, and she will be next to me, and eager to pick up anything I might have dropped.”

Everyday...

Everyday in the Baltimore-Washington region dozens of people live better lives because of being matched with a specially trained dog from Fidos. People with disabilities are more independent, struggling readers find new confidence, and people in hospitals and nursing homes are encouraged when therapy dogs visit.
